Grammar Notes

1. Contractions are common in spoken English. However, they are not so common in written English such as formal business letters or essays.
2. In English, we can say, "He'll be walking to school this afternoon." However, you should never say, "Yes, he'll" (or she'll, etc.) – without a following verb – to answer a question.
For example: (A) Will he be walking to school?
(B) Yes, he'll.
The above example is a mistake.
The following is correct:
(B) Yes, he will.
3. 'Won't' is very common in spoken English. However, saying 'will not' can emphasize the sentence.
For example: No, I will not give up!
